Celtic Harmony: The Hanging of a Mouse

When: Saturday, 20 September, 7pm

Where: Celtic Harmony Camp,
Brickendon Lane, Brickendon, SG13 8NY

Step inside the Chieftain Roundhouse and hear one of Britain's most celebrated storytellers Hugh Lupton bring ancient Welsh literature, rooted in Celtic mythology, to life by firelight.

Engage your senses and step into a world of myth and magic. As the firelight flickers, you'll feel a powerful connection to the ancient tales, as if the stories are unfolding just for you. Get ready to be spellbound by the rich, evocative language and the deep emotional journey of these legendary stories.

Drawn from the First and Third Branches of these legendary medieval stories, Hugh's performance of 'The Hanging of a Mouse' unravels a haunting and beautiful journey through love, violence, enchantment, and revenge—a world where badgers are carried in bags, the veil between realms is thin, and even a mouse may face the gallows.

Creative Writing Workshop

When: Wednesday, 24 September & Monday, 29 September, 8PM - 9:30PM

Where: BEAM (The Kitchen Bar), The Wash, Hertford, SG14 1PS

These sessions will be informal and low-key Creative Writing sessions to share ideas and provide gentle encouragement. Group prompts and writing exercises will be provided, which will hopefully spark ideas you might never have thought of on your own, and hearing other people's stories can be both moving and motivating. Everyone brings their own voice and life experience, and you can share or not as you prefer. Writing in a group makes the experience even more enjoyable. Far from being competitive or intimidating, this writing group will be a warm, friendly space where everyone supports each other. There's no 'right' - only pieces of writing that you may or may not want to share or keep or discard at will. The focus will be on exploring, playing with language, and sharing stories if—and only if—you feel like it!

The Fabric Folk

When: Various, beginning
Saturday, 18 October

Where: Across East Herts

A series of textile reuse workshops and pop-ups that invite the public to creatively repair and upcycle their clothing to prevent waste. Led by The Fabric Folk, a creative textile reuse project, each event will include hands-on instruction in visible mending techniques such as darning, Sashiko and patchwork, using discarded scrap fabrics and thread. Alongside workshops, we will host rescued fabric and yarn pop-up stalls to provide low-cost creative materials to the community to encourage sustainable reuse.

By blending craft with sustainability, this project empowers people to engage in the circular economy through creativity. It offers an accessible route into textile arts and a meaningful way to reduce waste. Participants will take home new skills, a repaired garment, and information about how to stay involved in textile reuse beyond the event.

Julie Arnall Life Drawing

When: Saturday, 18 October,
1:30PM - 3:30PM

Where: Much Hadham Village
Hall, Oudle Ln, Much Hadham,
SG10 6DQ

A free two hour life drawing class for people who have not attended a life class before, but are curious to find out what it is like.

Life drawing is a great way to improve your general drawing skills and it also provides an opportunity to do a creative activity in a group, however, many people are a little intimidated about what a life class is really like or feel self conscious about their inexperience. This class will provide a friendly and reassuring environment to try a life class amongst others in a similar position.

Full tuition will be provided by Julie Arnall MA Fine Art, who has over 25 years' experience of teaching adults of all abilities, with demonstrations on how to begin drawing from the figure, group and one to one tuition. All materials will be provided including paper, charcoal and drawing boards to make it easy for anyone to attend.

Julie Arnall

When: Saturday 25 October,
9:30AM - 12PM

Where: Leventhorpe School,
Cambridge Rd, Sawbridgeworth,
CM21 9BY

A free two and a half hour workshop for children in Primary school Years 5 or 6 and an accompanying adult, which could be their parent/carer or an adult from the school which they attend (for example their teacher or learning support assistant).

Participants will be introduced to the basic principles of monoprint printmaking via a short demonstration. Working in pairs, they will then produce two A4 monoprints each using different coloured inks and a variety of found objects such as pressed leaves, feathers and fabric.

They will then cut out a paper stencil of their hand and print in a third colour over the top of their prints to produce a unique piece of personalised artwork to take home. Participants should have 3/4 artworks by the end of the session.

The session is entirely practical using brightly coloured inks and found objects and simple paper stencils making it fun and accessible for children and novice adults who may not have any artistic experience (or confidence). The printmaking process is structured and participants will be guided through the morning.

Eloise Pilbeam

When: Saturday, 25 October, 10am-11am, 12pm-1pm & 2pm-3pm

Where: BEAM Hertford (Function Room 2), The Wash, Hertford SG14 1PS

Participants will create a plaster sculpture inspired by the local autumn landscape. The workshop begins with a mindful walk through the surrounding area, where participants collect natural objects such as pine cones, acorns, bark, and conkers. These found items become personally meaningful as they deepen our connection to the natural world. Participants will then press their gathered materials into clay, creating moulds that capture unique patterns and textures. Plaster will then be poured into the clay moulds, transforming these impressions into lasting, three-dimensional sculptures. Each piece becomes a tangible reflection of the participant's journey, creativity, and connection to the season. The final artwork will serve as a meaningful keepsake—capturing both a moment in time and the beauty of the autumn landscape.

I am, I am, theatre company

When: Various

Where: BEAM, The Wash, Hertford

"It's a tree. It's a tree, Trev. A tree's a tree. Don't call him he."

In the dead of night in spring 2023, Trev and Gary meet at the sycamore tree near Hadrian's Wall. They've got a plan, hatched in the pub down the road and fuelled by beer and sheer determination. They're going to cut down the tree.

The question at the heart of SYCAMORE is, "what do we lose when we destroy the world around us?" The play humanises these two men and their intentions, exploring the roots of violence, masculinity and ecocide. The theatre company want the audience to laugh, mourn, and reimagine their relationship to one another.
